Dear Journal, 12th October 2023

I was on my bed when the phone rang. 'Ring! Ring! Hello?,' I picked up the phone, 'Hi, Danny! I've just finished the XR-350 time travel suit. Would you like to try it on?'. It was Professor Tomrid. He's a great inventor-he has invented teleporters, invisible ice cream, and tons of other incredible inventions. And this time, he has invented a time travelling suit. 'Oh yes! I'd love to try it!' I replied. 'See you in ten minutes!' I was thrilled.

I dressed up quickly, grabbed a croissant, and I was ready to go. I was so excited that forgot to brush my teeth! 'Hi!' Professor Tomrick greeted me warmly. 'Let me show you the suit that has the superpower to travel through time'. He pushed aside a heavy red velvet curtain. 'Ta da!' the Professor said. It was a suit that Ironman would wear. 'How do I use that?' I asked. 'When you wear it and push this button, you will have wonderful power. You can travel through time whenever you want to' Professor Tomrich replied. 'Are you ready to try it out? And where do you want to go?' he asked. I would like to go to my school's very first day. It opened 65 years ago,' I replied. 'Okay! Please wear the suit tightly and do not lose it, otherwise you will be lost in a parallel universe' the Professor said. I was nervous but thrilled too. It was the first time ever to travel to the past! 'Three, two, one, off you go!' Professor Tomrick cried. A blinding green light surrounded me. Within seconds, I had travelled back to 65 years ago.

When I opened my eyes, I saw a kid running around. He waved at me and asked 'Who are you? Why are you dressed up like this?'. 'Uh...I am from another country. Can you show me around? I replied. 'Sure!' The kid took my hand, and we walked around the school. The school building was much lower, it only had three stories, and it looked very old. Although it was only twenty minutes, I have seen a lot of different things.

The teachers didn't use computers. Instead, they only used books. There weren't any iPads. 'Where is the STEM Room?' I asked. 'What's that?' the young boy asked. 'Where's the library?' I asked. 'We don't have one' the youngster answered. Their campus life was so basic. All the facilities were very old. They weren't as advanced as the present. There were not many fun activities for them. Life for them was very hard!

I took out my mobile phone and wanted to take a photo with the kid. He was astonished. He didn't know what the mobile phone was. 'Click' sounded the button on the camera. The boy saw our faces on the mobile phone screen. He was shocked. When I was asking the boy's name, my button was blinking suddenly, because it was time to go back to the Professor's lab. I could only hear that the child's name was Ben Tomri...Then the blinding green light surrounded me again. I was back to the present. When I showed Professor Tomrich my photo, he snickered.
